LETTER TO ATHLETES

Congratulations to everyone who participated in the 2017 Pasadena Senior Games!

This document chronicles the achievements of over 1,100 athletes, with ages spanning more than half a century, coming from varied ethnic, cultural, and economic backgrounds, who traveled from Pasadena and across the country to compete for medals in twenty different sports. All to share in the camaraderie and challenge of the Pasadena Senior Games.

As the new Director of Events at the Pasadena Senior Center, it was my privilege to experience the Games for the first time. While visiting nineteen of the twenty sports competitions I witnessed first-hand the commitment, friendliness, and sportsmanship of the participants, not to mention their athleticism. It was truly inspiring. While many are serious athletes who compete to win and regularly take home medals and sometimes break records, others are sports enthusiasts who sign up because they enjoy the camaraderie and it keeps them active.

At the Strength Challenge competition, two other women at the competition (both accomplished athletes) encouraged me to join in, promising me “automatic gold — you’re the only woman in your age category!” I am delighted to report this newbie got a Gold Medal in Standing Long Jump for my not-very-long 4’4” jump. With the medal came a real desire to become more physically active in the future. This ability to encourage novices like me while still respecting the accomplishments of masters is a special quality of the Games.

As the late Cynthia Rosedale, the deeply missed founding organizer of the Pasadena Senior Games, knew so well — producing the Pasadena Senior Games requires money and a work force. Because registration fees only cover a portion of the expenses, sponsors and donors provide the funding necessary to keep the Games alive. Thank you to our 2017 sponsors for their generous gifts in support of the Games.

I would also like to thank the hundreds of volunteers that gave their time, energy, and expertise to the 2017 Pasadena Senior Games. We could not do it without the Commissioners who oversaw each individual sport, high school students who helped with registration, and longtime volunteers whose knowledge of the Games makes their participation invaluable. I would like to particularly thank Katie Enney, Carolyn Zorn, and Debbie Weatherwax for their guidance and advice. I also want to acknowledge the tireless work of Pasadena Senior Center staff member Renee Uriarte, who managed the volunteers, oversaw registration, and took care of many details to ensure the success of the 2017 Games.

I look forward to robust competition in 2018 when the Pasadena Senior Games is one of two designated California State Championships qualifying athletes to participate in the National Senior Games the following year.

See you in 2018,

Annie Laskey
Manager of Special Events
