What's your favorite memory from the 2019 Pasadena Senior Games? Cheering on Gunnar Linde as he set a USA American Masters Track and Field Record for his age group in the 5000 meter run? (Gunnar is 90 years old). Feeling the strain as 56-year old David Asti bench-pressed 315 pounds? Enjoying the beauty of the Conejo Valley Archers Tournament Range in the springtime while competing with forty fellow archers? Playing your way through three days of Pickleball matches during a heat wave? Race Walking with 72-year old Yoko Eichel prior to her winning two Gold Medals at Nationals? Winning a medal yourself?

I have many favorite memories from this year's Games. I was able to visit 19 of the 21 sports competitions this year, and my enthusiasm, awe, and delight in the Games continues to grow. The accomplishment of the athletes and the generosity of spirit they show to one another is humbling. The passion and dedication of athletes, officials, and volunteers alike is inspiring. As one of the quasi-official photographers, I took literally thousands of photos during the course of the Games. I am not an athlete (yet!), so documenting the sports is a way that I can share in the joy, pain, camaraderie, hope and determination that defines the Senior Games.

Over 1100 athletes jumped, ran, threw, swam, hit, lifted, or otherwise took part in the Pasadena Senior Games this year. Participants came from across the region, and the ages spanned half a century. Each of you had your own special reasons and motivations for competing. But whether you are a life-long athlete working for a personal best or are just trying out a sport for the first time, you are the reason for the Games.

As Cynthia Rosedale, founder of the Pasadena Senior Games, and Pete Clentzos, Olympian and longtime supporter of the Games, always said: Hubba Hubba! And congratulations.
